How Does Wifi Boost Battery Life on a Smartphone? Wifi has a reputation for gobbling up battery life. In reality, it's not the wifi itself that causes this problem, but rather some of the other features on your phone. Wifi drains more battery when you're actively using data and streaming videos than when it's in sleep mode. This is because when you're actively using data, such as downloading a video, your phone is working harder to send and receive information. If you disable wifi, your phone will revert to sending all of its information through cellular service instead. This will let it save energy and give you more time between charges.
